

 Easy

If you are like me, you think about making Christmas projects on December 1, but let's do it differently this year! This is a quick and easy table runner project that can be easily expanded to make it longer (just add more blocks) using a jelly roll so there is less cutting. This table runner can be made in less than a weekend and it will feel so good to have something pretty for the holidays ready so early. I love how Winterberry by Kate and Birdie is seasonal yet doesn't scream Christmas so I can use this table for the winter season!

I use scraps to make my backing so in case the front got dirty while we had company over, I could just flip it over.

Enjoy!
